The Charge

"To you, Sons of Confederate Veterans, we will commit the vindication of the cause for which we fought. To your strength will be given the defense of the Confederate soldier's good name, the guardianship of his history, the emulation of his virtues, the perpetuation of those principles which he loved and which you love also, and those ideals which made him glorious and which you also cherish.

Given at New Orleans, LA in a speech on April 25, 1906 to the SCV National Convention by Lt. Gen. Stephen D Lee.

From the Commander's Desk

By: Camp Commander Don Green
Greetings Compatriots,

Fall Muster just passed and it was a banner year for Beauvoir: The Last Home of President Jefferson Davis. Over 300 reenactors enlisted for duty to help Fall Muster to a glowing success. Camp members enjoyed the many activities offered over the weekend. These included school days on Friday, monument dedication for Traveler, President Davis's trusty Russian Bulldog, buried in the yard in front of the house (behind the house in the 1880's) on Saturday morning, the battles on both days, and the Memorial to the Unknown Soldier on Sunday morning. The 3rd Mississippi Infantry participated in the weekend by honoring the Shieldsboro Rifles and other companies of the 3rd Miss by fielding 20 troops in line that took part in the activities both days. Upcoming for the 3rd Miss. Inf. after Beauvoir will be events in Ocean Springs, MS., Camp Paraphet in New Orleans, Tallassee, AL., Camp Moore in Tangipahoa, LA., and Leakesville, MS.; each of these events has a special meaning to us such as the 3rd having served at Camp Moore in May 1862. Our Camp has programs coming up to support the Honey Bees in the Wreaths Across America events at Beauvoir on December 7 and Rotten Bayou Cemetery on December 14. We will be discussing the Make Dixie Great Again and Dixie Legion Programs as well as our 3rd Miss Inf Reg't Monument Project in the coming months. This month's camp meeting will take place Tuesday October 29, 2019 at our newly-voted on time of 6:30pm at the American Legion in Bay St. Louis. Your Camp Commander is prepared to present a program to the Camp. We hope to see you there!

National News

Work continues on the National Museum at the SCV Headquarters at Elm Springs in Tennessee

The Second Battle of Corinth

Union forces had captured the railroad junction and important transportation center at Corinth, Mississippi in the spring of 1862 after their victory at Shiloh. After the Battle of Iuka in September, Maj. Gen. Sterling Price's Confederate Army of the West marched to Ripley, Mississippi where it joined Maj. Gen. Earl Van Dorn's Army of West Tennessee. Van Dorn took command of the combined force numbering about 22,000 men. The Rebels marched southeast toward Corinth, hoping to recapture it and then sweep into Middle Tennessee. About 23,000 Union forces under Maj. Gen. William S. Rosecrans had erected strong fortifications around the town. Van Dorn arrived on October 3rd, and began to encircle the Union forces. The fighting began, and the Confederates steadily pushed the Yankees back. By evening, Van Dorn was sure that he could finish the Federals off the next day. This confidence--combined with the heat, fatigue, and water shortages--persuaded him to cancel any further operations that day. Rosecrans regrouped his men for the attack to come. As the Confederates moved forward the next morning, Union artillery swept the field causing heavy casualties, but the Rebels continued on. They stormed Battery Powell and closed on Battery Robinett, where desperate hand-to-hand fighting ensued. A few Rebels fought their way into Corinth but the Federals quickly drove them out. The Federals continued on, recapturing Battery Powell, and forcing Van Dorn into a retreat. Rosecrans postponed any pursuit. As a result, Van Dorn was defeated, but not destroyed or captured, at nearby Hatchie Bridge, Tennessee, on October 5th.
