The Charge

"To you, Sons of Confederate Veterans, we will commit the vindication of the cause for which we fought. To your strength will be given the defense of the Confederate soldier's good name, the guardianship of his history, the emulation of his virtues, the perpetuation of those principles which he loved and which you love also, and those ideals which made him glorious and which you also cherish.

Given at New Orleans, LA in a speech on April 25, 1906 to the SCV National Convention by Lt. Gen. Stephen D Lee.

From the Commander's Desk By: Camp Commander Don Green

Greetings Compatriots,

I would like to give you what is the general opinion of what a Camp Member, Good Camp Member, Really Good Camp Member and a Great Camp Member is. First off, a Camp Member is one who pays his dues on time. That's pretty basic to send your dues in and this covers the members who live more than an hour away from Bay St. Louis. A Good Camp Member is one who pays their dues on time and attends the monthly Camp Meetings. This is the what the basic Camp Member that lives within an hour of the meeting place should strive for. A Really Good Camp Member is one who pays his dues on time, attends camp meetings and attends camp functions throughout the year. This is the member who really likes to volunteer for functions, dress out at events and be wiilling to take on a project and be an appointed committee chairman over something. A Great Camp Member pays his dues on time, attends camp meetings, attends camp functions throughout the year, dresses out for events, takes on Projects, can be a Committee Chairman and is willing to be a Camp Officer. Now I ask each of you in this camp, which Camp Member are you? We have over 60 members in our Camp and half of those live within an hour of our cetral location. We work really hard to have a quality speaker and we have 7 Camp Members Show up for a camp meeting. We understand personal lives will supersede the Camp Meeting, however can you really not take 2 hours out of your month to make a Camp Meeting. Physical issues aside such as eye sight and trvel limitations, family issues such as taking care of your kids is understandable as is a job conflict. So ask again....Which type of Member are you? Our next Camp meeting of the year will be this Tuesday May 25th, 2021 at 6:30pm at The American Legion Post 139 in Bay St. Louis. Past Commander Bruce Roberts will be our speaker for this month. We hope to see you there.

Media Pages Update

We are looking at creating a new website for a minimum fee, possibly free, for the Camp. Our original website was a bit costly and has not been renewed as of yet. Camp Members are looking at this for us and will report to us in the very near future with possible options. We are also looking at creating other pages on different social media sites given the biasedness against our heritage that exists on present medias. More to come.

ORDER OF THE CONFEDERATE ROSE

HANCOCK COUNTY, MS

The Pearl Rivers Chapter #30 chartered into the Mississippi Society Order of the Confederate Rose during an interesting time in our world. We chartered in January 2020 and were unable to have our first independent meetings due to the COVID pandemic. We are proud to say that we will be hosting our first meeting on September 1st, where our members will discuss activities we hope to accomplish and how we plan on supporting our host Camp.

We hope to invite prospective membership to our future meetings, which will be the first Tuesday of each month. If you have a female family member who would like to join the Pearl Rivers Chapter #30, Mississippi Society Order of the Confederate Rose, please email the Chapter at pearlriversocr30@gmail.com.

Yours,

Callie Bunter President Pearl Rivers Chapter #30, Mississippi Society Order of the Confederate Rose

THE BATTLE OF PALMITO RANCH

May 13, 1865 – A skirmish that took place in south Texas after the war ended ironically resulted in Confederate victory.

Colonel Theodore Barrett had dispatched a force of about 300 Federals under Lieutenant Colonel David Branson to seize the vital port city of Brownsville, on the tip of Texas where the Rio Grande meets the Gulf of Mexico. This violated an unofficial truce between the opposing forces that had been in place most of this year. Branson hoped to surprise the Confederate outpost at Palmito Ranch, situated on a hill commanding the approach to Brownsville from Brazos Island. But as Branson later reported:

"I could not reach Palmetto Ranch before daylight to surprise it, and therefore hid my command in a thicket and among weeds on the banks of the Rio Grande one mile and a half above White's Ranch, where we remained undiscovered until 8.30 a.m., when persons on the Mexican shore seeing us started to give the alarm to the rebels. At the same time soldiers of the Imperial Mexican Army were marching up that bank of the river."

Branson reported that his Federals attacked and drove the Confederates "from their camp, which had been occupied by about 190 men and horses, capturing 3 prisoners, 2 horses, and 4 beef-cattle, and their ten days' rations, just issued." The Confederate field commander at Brownsville, Colonel John S. Ford (nicknamed R.I.P. or "Rest in Peace" Ford), planned to counterattack, even though "this may be the last fight of the war, and from the number of Union men I see before me, I am going to be whipped."

Ford's superior, Brigadier General James E. Slaughter, had learned that the major Confederate armies to the east had surrendered and told Ford that he did not want a fight. Ford replied, "You can retreat and go to hell if you wish! These are my men, and I am going to fight. I have held this place against heavy odds. If you lose it without a fight the people of the Confederacy will hold you accountable for a base neglect of duty."

Supported by two guns, Ford's Confederate cavalry advanced and drove the Federals back. Ford told his troops, "Boys, we have done finely. We will let well enough alone and retire." That night, Branson reported that "a considerable force of the enemy appeared, and the position being indefensible, I fell back to White's Ranch for the night, skirmishing some on the way..." Colonel Barrett, who was not on the scene, reported to his Federal superiors:

"The enemy was driven in confusion from his position, his camp, camp equipage, and stores falling into our hands. Some horses and cattle were also captured and a number of prisoners taken. Destroying such stores as could not be transported, Lieutenant-Colonel Branson returned to the vicinity of White's Ranch, and took up his position for the night."

Barrett answered Branson's call for reinforcements by sending another regiment. The troops crossed the Rio Grande in skiffs and marched up to join their comrades at White's Ranch that night. Barrett arrived early next morning to take personal command of the force, which now numbered 800 men. Barrett later reported, "I at once ordered an advance to be again made in the direction of Palmetto Ranch, which, upon the retirement of Lieutenant-Colonel Branson, had been reoccupied by the rebels. The enemy's cavalry were soon encountered."

The Federals drove Ford's 350 Confederates away from Palmito Ranch and, according to Barrett, "Such stores as had escaped destruction the day previous were now destroyed, and the buildings which the enemy had turned into barracks were burned, in order that they might no longer furnish him convenient shelter." The Federals then fell back to rest and regroup.

During this time, Ford and Slaughter reformed their force and led a Confederate counterattack. Barrett reported:

"With the Rio Grande on our left, a superior force of the enemy in front, and his flanking force on our right, our situation was at this time extremely critical. Having no artillery to oppose the enemy's six 12-pounder field pieces, our position became untenable. We therefore fell back, fighting. This movement, always difficult, was doubly so at this time, having to be performed under a heavy fire from both front and flank."

The Federals fell back toward Brazos Island, with the Confederates trying to sustain an effective pursuit. Ford, concerned about the condition of his horses, finally called a halt. The Federals withdrew to Boca Chica, where they were evacuated by sea. Barrett sustained 115 casualties in a fight that he had started but had no effect on the war's outcome.

When news reached the Confederates at Brownsville that many of their comrades had already surrendered, they began dropping from the ranks to go home. Nevertheless, the last battle of the War Between the States ended in a Confederate victory.
