By: Camp Commander Don Green

Greetings Compatriots,

DUES ARE DUE and they are $55 to renew your annual membership. To my understanding, it will be a $12.50 late fee plus the $55 dues to be current. So we need your dues to us ASAP to avoid the delinquency status. We will be mailing the camp check for dues a week before the deadline, so we need the dues no later then the middle of August. I sent out an email last month describing the cost breakdown and explaining the issue with the dues mail out which was incorrect. Feel free to mail them to Adjutant Redmond or myself as both of us are on the Camp Account. Please do not mail the dues renewal to the National Office or the Division Adjutant. Several of us attended the National Reunion in Kenner, LA and it was a succesful Convention. Adjutant Redmond was awarded the Dixie Club Certificate for recruitment in the entire Confederation. He should have been rewarded in our division awrds for recruitmant as well. But he is the primary reason that our membership has swelled to over 60 members in our 6th year of existence. Though summer is here, we have some things coming up. Several of us will partipate at historic Fort Morgan August 7th to commemorate the Battle of Mobile Bay. Then we will be back at Beauvoir for a living history and firewood work day the 21st. This newsletter is a little late as I had issues with my computer. We were thrown a curveball concerning meeting at the Legion, so our next Camp meeting of the year will be this Tuesday July 27th, 2021 at 6:30pm at Adjutant Redmond's House located at 22467 Freddy Frank Rd. in Long Beach. Division Monument Chairman Forrest Dawes will be in attendance to tell us about the programs he is working on. We hope to see you there.

Media Pages Update

We are looking at creating a new website for a minimum fee, possibly free, for the Camp. Our original website was a bit costly and has not been renewed as of yet. Camp Members are looking at this for us and will report to us in the very near future with possible options. We are also looking at creating other pages on different social media sites given the biasedness against our heritage that exists on present medias. More to come.

THE BATTLE OF MANASSAS

Fairfax County and Prince William County, VA. Jul 21, 1861

Bull Run was the first full-scale battle of the Civil War. The fierce fight there forced both the North and South to face the sobering reality that the war would be long and bloody.

How it ended

Confederate victory. After this stinging defeat for the Union, Brig. Gen. Irvin McDowell, the commander of the Union Army of Northeastern Virginia, was relieved and replaced by Maj. Gen. George B. McClellan, who set about reorganizing and training what would become the Army of the Potomac.

In context

Although the Civil War officially began when Confederate troops shelled Fort Sumter on April 12, 1861, the fighting didn't commence in earnest until the Battle of Bull Run, fought months later in Virginia, just 25 miles from Washington D.C. Under public pressure to end the war in 90 days, President Lincoln had pushed the cautious Gen. McDowell to embark on a campaign to capture the Confederate capital in Richmond, but McDowell's troops were stopped at Bull Run by Brig. Gen. P.G.T. Beauregard's Rebel forces. The Federals retreated to Washington, where the Lincoln administration retooled for a war that would be waged at great human and financial cost

Before the Battle

On July 16, the Union 90-day volunteer army under McDowell—around 35,000 troops with great enthusiasm and little training—sets out from Washington, D.C. The Confederates under Beauregard, equally green, are positioned behind Bull Run Creek west of Centreville. They aim to block the Union army advance on the Confederate capital by defending the railroad junction at Manassas, just west of the creek. The railroads there connect the strategically important Shenandoah Valley with the Virginia interior. Another Confederate army under Gen. Joseph E. Johnston operates in the Valley and is poised to reinforce Beauregard. McDowell's plan is to make quick work of Beauregard's force before Johnston can join him.

On July 17, both sides skirmish along Bull Run at Blackburn's Ford near the center of Beauregard's line. The inconclusive fight causes McDowell to revise his attack plan, which requires three more days to implement. Meanwhile, Johnston's men in the Valley manage to elude the Federals and board trains headed for Bull Run. They arrive at the scene on July 20. During the Battle

July 21. McDowell's early morning advance up Bull Run Creek to cross behind Beauregard's left is hampered by an ambitious plan that requires complex synchronization. Constant delays on the march by the green officers and their troops, as well as effective scouting by the Confederates, give McDowell's movements away. Later that morning, McDowell's artillery shells the Confederates across Bull Run near a stone bridge. Two divisions finally cross at Sudley Ford and make their way south behind the Confederate left flank. Beauregard sends three brigades to handle what he thinks is only a distraction, while planning his own flanking movement of the Union left.

The Federals have the upper hand throughout the morning as they drive Confederate forces back from Matthews Hill. The retreating Confederates rally on an open hilltop near the home of the widow Judith Henry, where a brigade of Virginia regiments led by Brig. Gen. Thomas J. Jackson assembles. Jackson forms the scattered Confederate artillery into a formidable line on the eastern slope of the hill with his infantry hidden in the tall grass behind the guns.

As the Confederates reinforce their lines, McDowell pauses his attack. Consolidating his own forces, he moves more divisions across Bull Run and occupies Chinn Ridge, west of Henry Hill. Then McDowell blunders. He places two rifled artillery batteries on the western side of Henry Hill within 300 yards of Jackson's guns. Union infantry regiments soon become targets of Jackson's nearby artillery. A contest between infantry and artillery erupts, causing havoc and accidentally killing Judith Henry in the crossfire as she hides in her home.

Jackson's men hold firm. Sometime during the fighting, Confederate Brig. Gen. Bernard Bee calls encourages his own brigade to rally with Jackson, who, he declares, is standing like a "stone wall." Although he is killed in action, Bee's statement lives on, and from that moment Jackson is known as "Stonewall."

Late in the afternoon, Confederate reinforcements under Col. Jubal Early extend the Confederate line and attack the Union right flank on Chinn Ridge. Jackson's men advance across the top of Henry Hill and push back the Federal infantry, capturing some of the guns. The withdrawal of the Union center quickly spreads to the flanks. Virginia cavalry under Col. James Ewell Brown "Jeb" Stuart arrive on the field and charge into a confused mass of Union regiments. The Federals retreat.

Aftermath UNION 2,896 460 killed

1,124 wounded 1,312 missing & captured ESTIMATED CASUALTIES 4,878 UNION 2,896 CONFEDERATE 1,982 CONFEDERATE 1,982 387 killed 1,582 wounded 13 missing & captured

As the battle ends, the Confederates are bolstered by the arrival from Richmond of President Jefferson Davis, but the victorious forces are too disorganized to pursue the Federals. McDowell's fleeing forces, already hampered by narrow bridges and overturned wagons, are further impeded by hordes of fleeing civilian spectators, who had come down from Washington to enjoy the spectacle. By July 22, the remnants of the shattered Union army reach the safety of Washington, D.C. McDowell is later relieved of his command.
